

Step and Flash Imprint Lithography: A Status Report

C. Grant Willson, The University of Texas

The cost of the lithographic process threatens the structure of the semiconductor manufacturing industry. Step and Flash Imprint lithography is a low cost, high resolution patterning technology that shows great promise as an alternative for producing nanostructures. This process will be reviewed and the potential for implementation in nanomanufacturing discussed.